Dear Sir:

I thank you for sending to me the biographical details in regard to Dr. Roerich.
We hope to bring out a new edition of Leaders in Education, but do not expect to do so in the near future.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

We desire to express our thanks for the biographical sketch of Professor Roerich. The present writer has long been acquainted with the interesting career and achievements of the Professor, and has wondered how it came that his predecessors omitted so distinguished a name from the Encyclopedia.

About two years ago I wrote a biography of the Professor for inclusion, but the particular page on which this should go has not been touched. At the first opportunity, however, I shall make it a point to insert the biography you kindly sent us.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

Your letter of September 4th, together with the biographical sketch of Professor Nicholas Roerich was received this morning. Mr. McDannald, the Editor of THE AMERICANA, is away from the office on vacation. When he returns I will bring your letter and the biography to his attention for further reply.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir;

I do not know when you are planning a new edition of DOUBLEDAY'S ENCYCLOPEDIA, but take this opportunity to place before you a brief biographical sketch of Professor Nicholas Roerich, which has just been corrected to date for encyclopedia use.

We will also be very pleased to furnish you with any articles of a cultural nature of which you may have some future need.

Very truly yours,
