VALLEY OF

KULU

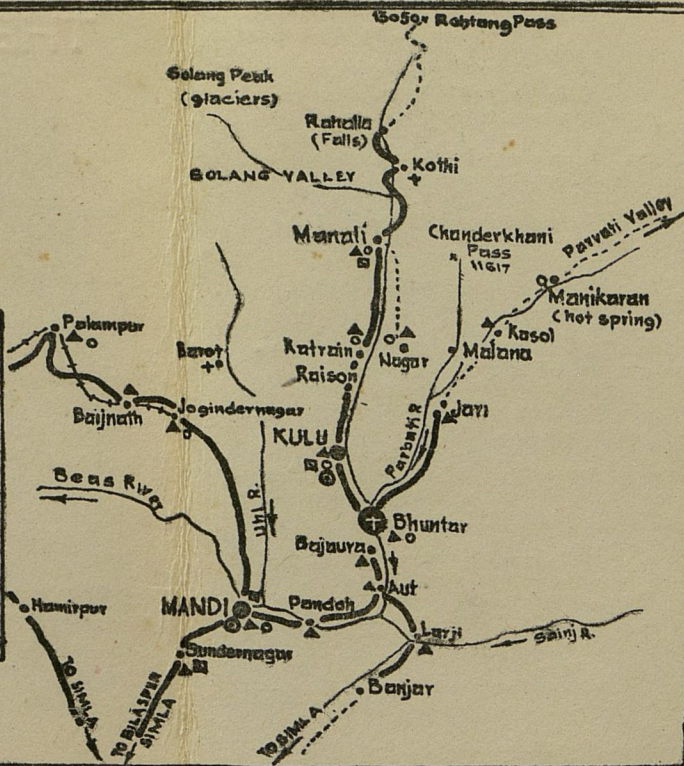

In the heart of Himachal Pradesh lies the enchanting valley of Kulu known for its apples, trout and honey. This is the valley of gods and temples for every village has a god and a temple of its own. Kulu, the principal town of the valley and headquarters of the district by the same name, is barely 10 k. m. from the air-strip of Bhuntar which is linked by a subsidised air service operating from Delhi during the season and touching down at Chandigarh on the way. Manali, the queen of hill stations, is 40 k. m. away at a height of 1,830 metres (6,000 feet) and is matchless insofar as the natural beauty is concerned. Excellent accommodation in the form of tourist bungalows, independent cottages and rest houses is available all over the valley. Beddings, crockery and catering service is also available.
