THE ROERICH
BANNER OF PEACE

The Roerich Banner of Peace was designed a few years ago by the world-famous painter, Nicholas Roerich, as a symbol of his message that the much-desired world-peace can be attained through knowledge and beauty applied in daily life. A number of nations and institutions have adopted the Banner as a protective sign to be flown over religious and educational edifices, art museums, science laboratories, and other cultural and philanthropic buildings and monuments, in times of international conflict and local disturbance. The Banner of Peace has the same purpose as the Red Cross Flag—the one claiming immunity from violence in the cultural realm, the other in the physical realm. But while the Red Cross Flag claims immunity after conflict has begun, the Banner of Peace is intended to promote through emphasis on Truth, Beauty and Goodness, the higher activities of humanity which will ultimately make war impossible.

THE MADANAPALLE COLLEGE
FLAG OF UNITY

The Madanapalle College Flag of Unity, unfurled today, symbolises the essential unity of man's variations of response to the universal Reality in the great spiritual cultures known as the Religions. Behind the Religions is the Eternal Wisdom (the serpent of Eternity, which in India is also gnana, wisdom) and the universal movement of spirit to matter and matter to spirit (the interlaced triangles). Out of these have come the Vedic culture (the lotus circle, whose eight petals indicate the Buddhist culture). Later came the Christian culture (the cross) and the culture of Islam (crescent and star). The emblem includes in intention all the spiritual cultures of human history. Its message is that in the fulfilment of the Vedic unity, the Buddhist calm, the Christian love, the Islamic self-surrender, lies the assurance of the peace for which the bewildered nations are longing. Each day's work in the College and its High School is opened by a dedication in terms of each of the Religions and by a general aspiration.
