CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. All bids to be PER PIECE as numbered in the catalogue, unless otherwise mentioned.
2. The highest bidder to be the buyer. In all cases of disputed bids the lot shall be resold, but the auctioneer will use his judgment as to the good faith of all claims, and his decision shall be final.
3. Any bid which is not commensurate with the value of the article offered, or which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, may be rejected by the auctioneer if in his judgment such bid would be likely to affect the sale injuriously.
4. The name of the buyer of each lot shall be given immediately after the sale thereof, and when so required, each buyer shall sign a card giving the lot number, amount for which sold, and his or her name and address. ¶ A deposit at the actual time of the sale shall be made of all or such part of the purchase prices as may be required. ¶ If the two foregoing conditions are not complied with, the lot or lots so purchased may at the option of the auctioneer be put up again and resold.
5. Title passes upon the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, and thereafter the property is at the purchaser's risk, and neither the owner nor the Company is responsible for the loss of, or any damage to any article by theft, fire, breakage, however occasioned, or any other cause whatsoever.
6. Articles not paid for in full and not called for by the purchaser by noon of the day following that of the sale may be turned over by the Company to some carter to be carried to and stored in some warehouse until the time of the delivery therefrom to the purchaser, and the cost of such cartage and storage and any other charges will be charged against the purchaser, and the risk of loss or damage occasioned by such removal or storage will be upon the purchaser. ¶ In any instance where the bill has not been paid in full by noon of the day following that of the sale, the Company reserves the right, any other stipulation in these conditions of sale to the contrary notwithstanding, in respect to any or all lots included in the bill, at its option, either to cancel the sale thereof or to resell the same at public or private sale without further notice for the account of the buyer and to hold the buyer responsible for any deficiency sustained in so doing.
7. The Company exercises great care to catalogue every lot correctly and endeavors therein and also at the actual time of the sale to point out any error, defect, or imperfection, but guaranty is not made either by the owner or the Company of the correctness of the description, genuineness, authenticity or condition of any lot, and no sale will be set aside on account of any incorrectness, error of cataloguing or imperfection not noted or pointed out. Every lot is sold "as is" and without recourse.
8. Buying or bidding by the Company for responsible parties on orders transmitted to it by mail, telegraph, or telephone, if conditions permit, will be faithfully attended to without charge. Any purchases so made will be subject to the foregoing conditions of sale. Orders for execution by the Company should be given with such clearness as to leave no room for misunderstanding. Not only should the lot number be given, but also the name of the object, and a bid on several objects catalogued under a single number should be stated to be so much per piece unless the description contains the notation "[Lot.]", in which case the bid should be stated to be so much FOR THE LOT. If the one transmitting the order is unknown to the Company, a deposit must be sent or reference submitted. Shipping directions should also be given.

9. The Company will afford every facility for the employment of carriers and packers by the purchasers, but will not be responsible for any damage arising from the acts of such carriers and packers.

These Conditions of Sale cannot be altered except by an Officer of the Company

Foreword

INSPIRED by the aesthetic principles and artistic activity of Nicholas Roerich, the genius of international fame, the Roerich Museum, located at 310 Riverside Drive, New York City, together with its affiliated institutions, has launched upon a great cultural program which embraces all the arts and related sciences.

Among its many activities the Roerich Museum started to build up a gallery of old masters. Greater expansion of its educational plans has influenced the Museum to dispose of part of its collection for an Educational Fund. This puts at the disposal of museums, private collectors, and dealers a remarkable collection of nearly two hundred items. These pictures were bought by connoisseurs and artists for the pleasure and study of professional students of art, and this origin is reflected in an unusually high quality, which extends even to the relatively unimportant numbers. For example, I feel that only an artist would have selected that oddly enchanting triptych in which the naïve yet expressive forms are invested with an extraordinary refinement of color.

It is my pleasant task merely to signalize a few of the more important pictures, while I shall feel at liberty also to notice a few others which, while technically less important, seem to me delightful. The first place is clearly due to Greco's Madonna and St. Anne, a picture which reveals him at the height of his power and also in his most reasonable mood,—a rare combination in a none too reasonable genius. It is plainly either his excerpt from or his study for the famous picture in the Prado. Of equal importance and of far greater rarity is the Madonna and Child by Simone Martini, by all means the most important Sienese picture that has come in the American auction market. The Madonna is the sister of the lovely Virgin Mary of the Palazzo Venezia and must be dated about the same time, before 1320, at the moment of Simone's artistic coming of age.

Again well worthy of notice is the big ikon representing a very familiar type, the Madonna with the Frightened Child, but a genuine Balkan piece of early date and of monumental severity of technique. The two panels of paired saints by Lorenzo Veneziano are chiefly notable for their decorative splendor. They have the minor merit of being by one of the rarest Italian masters and the pioneer of Gothic painting in Venice. The tenderness of the Sienese School towards the end of the XIV century is charmingly exemplified in a Saint Catherine by Bartolo di Fredi. There is a fine echo of the great Giambellino's austere vein in the signed panel by Palmezzano representing St. Jerome and St. Francis in a craggy wilderness. The High Renaissance picture which strikes me as most important is Sodoma's Christ at the Column, though the Venetian portrait group, called Venus and Cupid and ascribed to Paolo Veronese, is most sumptuously painted and in the finest technical tradition of the full-blown Venetian School.

But the northern paintings of a primitive or transitional sort constitute the most coherent and impressive group. Here everything yields in merely archaeological significance to the fine early copy of Roger van der Weyden's Descent from the Cross. It is a creation which exists only in copies that have been partially listed by Dr. Friedlander. And, in default of an original which is never likely to turn up, this expressive souvenir of the great Master of Tournai is peculiarly desirable for a Museum. Unquestionably the rarest of the Northern series is the little Ecce Homo by that Delft "Master of the Virgin among Virgins" in whom Dr. Friedlander recognizes the master of Jerome Bosch. Nothing more demurely yet seriously grotesque, more complete in color and characterization, or more perfect in condition can be imagined. A good second in interest is the admirable Agony in the Garden by the pioneer landscapist of Antwerp, Joachim Patinir. One would like to know who contributed the uncommonly strong and expressive figures. It is the only fine Patinir I have ever seen in the New York auction market. Though the Epiphany is modestly and correctly offered as a school piece of Gerard David, it has much of the gravity and sweetness of its prototype in the Brussels Gallery. Singularly attractive to me is the Madonna with Two Female Saints which, retaining much of the idealistic tradition of Memling, shows in the facial types that sophisticated and mannered grace which at Antwerp followed the reign of Matsys. Conceptually of the decadence, it has the qualities of its defects in a most fastidious workmanship.

Those Flemish and Dutch painters who surrendered to the spell of Italy have often not received the favor they merit, yet the museums at least must reckon with them; and they will, when at their best, make their way eventually with discriminating collectors. We have them at their best in Jan Matsys' highly mannered, yet to me, fascinating Bathsheba, in Scorel's Isaac and Jacob, and in the strangely noble Pietà by Aertsen in which the assimilation of Dutch and Italian elements is singularly successful.

The Early German group is small but it includes one tremendous picture in Altdorfer's Crucifixion. It is a purely mystical conception, the evening hour evoking the vision of the most moving of all evenings. Here the often latent romanticism of this German primitive finds unhampered expression. There are various attractive minor examples. I can mention only the very early and vigorous panel of a Martyrdom [I think the martyr is Thomas à Becket] which seems to me one of the very first expressions of the rare Danube school. The developed Flemish style is scantily represented, but there are rare items, true collector's pieces, in oil sketches of Rubens and Van Dyck.

The seventeenth century school of Holland offers many desirable items. I pick almost at random a Pieter Codde which has almost the authority of a Terborch, a brilliant conversation piece by Dirck Hals from the Stroganoff Collection, a very luminous and grandly composed harbor scene by Jan van Goyen, a radiant little Nicholas Berchem, and a sterling David Teniers picture, chiefly of landscape interest. By all means the most curious picture in this group is The Nuptial Prayer by Jan Steen, in which the habitual wag shows himself a sentimental pietist. He was after all a devout Roman Catholic among Calvinists, and we have in this famous and much commented picture a very instructive document of the artist's mentality.

Considerations of space and a lesser familiarity with the periods prevent me from continuing this survey into the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Here too, the well-informed amateur will find much to his purpose.

JAN STEEN

DUTCH: 1626-1679

144. TOBIAS AND SARAH [THE NUPTIAL PRAYER]

Interior of the nuptial chamber, with the figures of Sarah and Tobias kneeling in the right foreground, fervently praying, the young woman with her hair wreathed in flowers and wearing a grayish blue silk gown, while the youthful Tobias is in dark clothes, slashed at the sleeves and knees. Hovering above, cherubim are festooning the couch with flowers. In the foreground is a sleeping dog.

Height, 32 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches; width, 26 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches

Note: The composition was adapted by Steen from the Tobias and Sarah in the Central Museum of Utrecht painted by his master, Nicolaes Knupfer, in 1654. Comm. de Groot (vide infra) considers that the present picture was painted by Steen about 1667, and compares it with the two figures in the Marriage Contract at Brunswick, which is so dated.

JOACHIM PATINIR

FLEMISH: 1485-1524

147. AGONY IN THE GARDEN OF GETHSEMANE

Centring the composition in a rocky landscape is the figure of Our Lord in long aubergine robe, half-kneeling and with his hands outstretched. In the foreground are the sleeping disciples, at left St. John, at right St. Peter, and behind the rock by which Our Lord is praying, St. James. Approaching from the right distance across the stone bridge is a cavalcade of Roman soldiers. Beyond is a vista of deep blue country under a vault of blue sky, in which appears the figure of an angel in a heavenly glory.

Inscribed upon blade of sword at lower right.

Arched panel: Height, 17½ inches; width, 13½ inches

Note: The landscape in the above painting is identical with that of the Flight into Egypt by Patinir in the Antwerp Museum; the Stroganoff catalogue, while querying the attribution, presumably on account of the remarkable figures, states that the painting should in all probability be given to Patinir. It has since been authoritatively stated (cf. the introduction to the present catalogue by Prof. Mather) that the landscape is definitely the work of Patinir. The beautiful figures are due to another painter, possibly Lucas Van Leyden.

[NUMBER 156]

SCHOOL OF URBINO

EARLY XVI CENTURY

157. MADONNA AND CHILD

Upon a marble throne, before a gold background bordered with leaf-scrollings in bulino, is seated a full-length figure of the Virgin in black cloak powdered with golden flowers and turquoise-blue hood; beneath the cloak can be seen her crimson gown. Upon her lap is the nude Child, who holds a pear and offers the benediction; at lower right kneels the figure of the donor.

Inscribed and dated below, 1508

Cradled panel: Height, 58½ inches; width, 32 inches

Collection Barilomero, Palermo, Sicily

[See illustration]

[NUMBER 157]

UMBRIAN SCHOOL

XV CENTURY

158. TRIPTYCH

Three arched panels, the central one with superb depiction of the enthroned Madonna and Child. The Virgin Mother is seated in an elaborate mosaic throne, the tall slender figure robed in crimson and greenish blue. Seated upon her right arm is the Infant Christ in a pale rose girdled garment, holding in His left hand an orb. On the dais in the foreground is a philactery with an inscription in Roman lettering, above the date A.D. M.CCCC.LI. The left panel presents the gaunt standing figure of St. John the Baptist, wearing a hair-shirt almost completely covered by a pale rose mantle, which reaches beneath the knees of her bare legs. In his left hand he holds an inscribed banderole. Upon the right panel is the standing figure of St. Anthony, robed in a monk's gray and white habit, upon the left shoulder of which is inscribed the letter T, signifying THEOS. He holds a pastoral staff and a missal, and at his feet is a pig.

Triple-arched panel: Height, 55 inches; total length, 54 inches

Collection of Prince Giustiniani, Rome

[See illustration]

[NUMBER 158]

GERARD DAVID [SCHOOL OF]

FLEMISH: XV-XVI CENTURY

159. THE ADORATION OF THE MAGI

Within a Renaissance loggia is the youthful figure of the Virgin Mother in white linen wimple and voluminous blue mantle, seated at right holding the semi-draped figure of the Divine Infant. Before Him kneel the gorgeously robed figures of Melchior and Caspar in purple and fine linen, while the Moor, Balthazar, stands at rear, with their offerings of frankincense and myrrh. Slightly behind are groups of other personages, and beyond, a delicately delineated primitive landscape.

Cradled panel: Height, 32½ inches; width, 27½ inches

Note: A famous variation of the above work is in the Brussels Museum and is illustrated, i. a., in Fierens-Gevaert, La Peinture au Musée Ancien de Bruxelles, 1923, pl. XVII.

Collection of Comte Grégoire Stroganoff, Rome, 1911

SPANISH SCHOOL

EARLY XVI CENTURY

160. ALTARPIECE

Rectangular panel presenting the enthroned Madonna and Child with saints, the donor and donatrix, surrounded by fifteen small scenes from the life of the Virgin Mother and Our Lord, and a depiction of the Last Judgment in the lower panel.

Panel: Height, 84 inches; width, 55 inches

DIRCK VAN DELEN

DUTCH: 1605-1671

161. CATHEDRAL INTERIOR

The vaulted interior of a cathedral, with a view of the altar in the distance. Centring the composition, upon the tessellated flooring, are groups of figures, and at left a seated beggar soliciting alms.

Height, 35 inches; length, 41½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

DOMENICO FETI

ITALIAN: 1589-1624

162. AN ERRAND OF MERCY

The courtyard of a dwelling with two bearded figures bending over the edge of the parapet toward the prostrate figure in purple lying upon stones. At left in the courtyard, other figures are seen grouped about a table.

Cradled panel: Height, 28 inches; length, 33 inches

[NUMBER 163]

HENDRIK GOLTZIUS

DUTCH: 1558-1616

163. VENUS AND MARS DISCOVERED BY VULCAN

Panel: Height, 42 inches; length, 56 inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

[See illustration]

HIERONYMUS BOSCH [SCHOOL OF]

DUTCH: XVI CENTURY

164. REDEMPTION OF THE DAMNED

Distorted view of the nether regions with numerous demons torturing lost souls with various implements. Above, within a golden glory, appears the full-length figure of Our Lord.

Cradled panel: Height, 33½ inches; length, 45½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

FLEMISH SCHOOL

XVII CENTURY

165. LANDSCAPE WITH MOUNTAIN SCENERY

Rocky brown cliffs overgrown with trees drop down at left and right opening to a wide vista of a bay with green shores girdled by hills; in the foreground are a peasant and his child, and over the brow of the slope are riding two cavaliers.

Height, 27¼ inches; length, 45½ inches

CORNELIS VAN HAARLEM [CORNELISSEN]

DUTCH: 1562-1638

166. ALLEGORY OF WRATH

A wild landscape with a village in flames half obscured by a thunder cloud; beside a rushing stream are figures of wrangling women, and in the left foreground a group composed of a Medusa, a giant devouring an infant, and a child in armor.

Panel: Height, 24½ inches; length, 34½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

CORNELIS VAN HAARLEM [CORNELISSEN]

DUTCH: 1562-1638

167. ALLEGORY OF AVARICE

In the right middle distance is a turreted mansion surrounded by a moat and a formal garden in which ladies and gentlemen are walking. In the foreground is the enthroned figure of a woman surrounded by money and golden treasures, weighing bags of coin in her hand; beside her stands a male figure in a scarlet cloak and before her is seated a child, a smaller replica of herself.

Panel: Height, 24½ inches; length, 34½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

CORNELIS VAN HAARLEM [CORNELISSEN]

DUTCH: 1562-1638

168. ALLEGORY OF LOVE

A wild mountain landscape with villages and peasants with flocks of cattle and sheep in the meadows at the right. In the left foreground is a group consisting of a lady in green robe and yellow cloak holding a heart, and the figure of Hermes, and a child holding flowers with a lamb upon the grass.

Signed at lower right with monogram H. H., and dated ao. 1604

Panel: Height, 24½ inches; length, 34½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

CORNELIS VAN HAARLEM [CORNELISSEN]

DUTCH: 1562-1638

169. ALLEGORY OF PRIDE

In the right foreground is seated a richly robed female figure upon a peacock throne, with a scantily draped female attendant; before her figures of burghers and ladies and a demon devouring a heart; in the distance the spires and towers of a fantastic city.

Panel: Height, 24½ inches; length, 34½ inches

Collection of Alexander Arensberg, Esq., London

CORNELIS VAN HAARLEM [CORNELISSEN]

DUTCH: 1562-1638

170. ALLEGORY OF PLEASURE

A crowd of burghers and their ladies are assembled in the meadow watching the dancing and attractions of the fair outside of town; in the foreground a group composed of Apollo, a female Bacchante, and a figure of a child with bags of gold, before whom are strewn musical instruments, implements of sport, and artists' materials.

Signed at lower right, H. H., and dated ao. 1604
