

163 West 72^d street, New York,
March 24, 1938

Dear Professor and Madame Rorrich, -

Founders' Day always brings to us the memory of how you came to us from afar, bearing in your hands the greatest of gifts - gifts of beauty, of indispensable knowledge, gifts of the spirit.

It is with profound shame we recall that some of the recipients are repaying you with treachery and bitter hostility. But all through history such occasional treachery and hostility on the part of some unfortunates have been in proportion to the greatness of the gifts. Because of that inexplicable hostility of a few darkened minds, the love and gratitude of your constant and loyal friends, meeting on this anniversary of 1938,

Florence S. Lutors

M. M. Lichtenman

Dudley Fosdick

Levin S. Phelps Stokes

Spencer Campbell

Lugeborg Fritschel

Katherine Campbell

Sina Lichtmann

Ruth W. Weiss

Luce Fosdick

go to you with all the more poignancy and warmth, with a heartfelt depth never decreasing, but always growing.

Mabel S. Holt

Edith Montlack

Janet Fosdick

J. S. Cross Stokes

Henry C. Mobley

Ad. P. Kohler

Henry James Forman

Sophie Schapiro

Bernard V. Hall

James Hill

Rosa R. Rorrich