Dear Mr. Fosdick:

Your recent report, which has directed attention to the worlds rejection of cooperative advancement toward peaceful evolution, has prompted me to write to you.

Flamma was incorporated nearly a year ago to combat the very issues which you indicate as barriers to the progress of knowledge and human happiness. Conscious of the fact that culture, or spiritual science, must advance abreast of material science if civilization is to endure, we have dedicated our association to the establishment of the realization that only a broad scientific concept of culture as the fundamental basis for human association, will penetrate all boundaries and establish the ever elusive, true brotherhood of man.

Enclosed you will find a booklet which outlines in some detail this mission of culture as conceived by our Hon-President, Prof. Nicholas Roerich. Your reaction to the thoughts contained therein will be greatly appreciated by,

Yours very truly,

Gene Fosdick, Pres.
