Dear Respected Mr Roerich,

Please excuse me for this note: I was reading a book on 'Tibetan Yoga' by Bernard Bromage and as this was the first book on the subject I had read I have liked it very much. The subject itself had been of fascination to me for a long time. Mr Bromage has, as was amply due, given a very high accounts of your illustrious father's works on the subject.

I want to probe into the very interesting subject more carefully and with this view I have placed orders for copies of 'Tibet's Great Yogi Milarepa', 'Tibetan Book of the Dead' and 'The Seven Books of the Wisdom of the Great Path' by Dr. W. Evans-Wantz.

Mr Bromage has mentioned the famous book by your Dady 'The Heart of Asia' and it appears it is in English. As I could not get a correct address of the publishers I could not place order for this book.

I shall, indeed, be very grateful to you if you could kindly help me procure a copy of this famous book for my library. On hearing from you I shall send you the amount necessary. I shall also be grateful if you could suggest to me some more authorities on 'Tibetan Yoga' and the like for my use. Thanks.

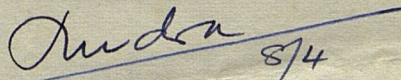

Motichand Pradhan is next door to me and he always mentions you in his talks. I owe a great deal to him for his talks on the subject of Yoga and Health, and he is entirely responsible for my taking this interest on the subject, which, now has become a favourite of mine also.

We are anxiously awaiting the publication of the Tibetan Book for learners by yourself and Mr Lobzang.

With my renewed regards to you,

Yours sincerely,

George Roerich, Esqr.,
