Dear Dr.Hagberg Wright,

It is a long time since I have had the pleasure of hearing from you, but I trust that you are keeping in good health and that everything around you is well.

Our Institute and some friends would like to send to the LONDON LIBRARY some of the more recent publications on our activities and my art. In order not to duplicate what the Library has already, I would be obliged if you could kindly let me know which of my books and books connected with our activities are in the catalogue. We shall then be glad to send what additional material we have.

As always we are at work the whole day - painting and writing. In our remote mountains the thunder of world events echoes - indeed a British general correctly defined this as the roar of Armageddon.

We shall always be glad to hear from you,

with best regards

Yours very sincerely
