Dear Prof. Nicholas de Roerich,

I was so satisfied to learn at last your lucky arrival near Mme de Roerich's abode, that I immediately forwarded my warm thanks to the british ambassador in France, lord Tyrrell. I informed too Mr Walter Edge that finally you had attained the aim of your anxious desire. But are you not the eminent master of the bow and arrow for anything you point at !?

Hoping sincerely that Mme de Roerich's state of health shall improve with your revivifying presence, I am quite moved by her hearty gratefulness, and I ask you to convey her my very sympathetic regards .

Thanking you heartily for your kind greetings and wishes, I hope reciprocally, that the new year shall gratify the utmost of your desires, particularly looking Mme de Roerich's health

Freindly your's
