January 25, 1932.

My dear Nicholas Roerich,

Thank you for your noble letter. But, above all, thank you for the friendship that I have with you and Mrs. Roerich and the Roerich Museum. And I must thank you also for the beautiful friendship of Miss Lichtmann and all her splendid co-freres. I am happy whenever I enter the Museum and find the spirit of companionship always greeting me when I pass through its portals. I believe with you in the one communion and fellowship of the children of light, that if we work for them, we can bring mighty things to pass on this bewildered planet. Wherever I can serve you or the cause, it will be a joy to me.

The Madonna of the Oriflamma is too lovely for blundering words, yet I thank you for this beauty and its inspiration.

With cordial greetings to you both,

Always your friend,

Robert Noun
