Dear Mr. Roerich:

Thank you for writing. Yes, I know your father took a very kindly interest in our work, and I still have on the wall of my office the copy of one of his paintings which he made in miniature with his own hand. I am proud to have it, and it has been a delight through the years. I am sending you a few small pieces of literature that you may not otherwise come across out there.

If you come across interesting observations or promising phenomena, in that part of the world, which you think we should investigate, I wish you would call my attention to them. As soon as we can raise funds for the purpose we intend to reach out to a wider field in our investigations.

Thank you again for your letter.

Sincerely yours,

J. B. Rhine

Dear Mr. Roerich:

I am glad you are coming to America. I hope I shall meet you then. It is very kind of you to send me one of your father's books, and I anticipate great pleasure in reading it. We were talking about your father a few days ago in connection with a review of Professor Bechterev's work. Your father added considerably to my knowledge of Bechterev.

Sincerely yours,
