Dear Mr Roerich.

I wrote two letters and sent you my book on Russia, all sent to the address you gave me in Bangalore, — about 4 or 5 months ago. I feel they have not reached you?
So I am sending this letter to Naggar. Recently a copy of "The Golden Blade" with my article on your father - called "Nicholas Roerich. Citizen of the World" was sent to your Bangalore address, please let me know if you do not receive it and if you would like more copies? The Golden Blade was dispatched to you at the beginning of December.

Yours sincerely
John Fletcher

P.S. I wonder if you can tell me where a painting by your father called "Treasures of the Angels" who is? I have a special interest in it and spoke about it in my article.

P.P.S. my Persian book 2 was despatched to you on July 30 with a letter. I sent you another letter on August 29.

Dear Sir

I am writing to ask for permission to reproduce the painting of Nicholas Roerich ~~to~~ portrait by Svetoslav Roerich; in colour in a annual magazine called "The Golden Blade" I have been asked to write an article on the life and art of Nicholas Roerich with two coloured illustrations. I have a good coloured reproduction. I have studied the life and art, writings and art of Nicholas Roerich for many years (since 1948). "The Golden Blade" is a high class publication, published by the Rudolf Steiner Press in London.

The aim of the magazine is to publish writings dealing with a wide range and variety of subjects which touch upon the deepest spiritual impulses of mankind.

The title "The Golden Blade" is derived from an old Persian legend - "Djemidid was a king who led his people from the north towards Iran, and who received from the God whom he called Ahura Mazdao a golden dagger by means of which he was to fulfill his mission on earth." I am writing to the Roerich Museum in New York for permission to reproduce one they have.

Yours sincerely
John Fletcher

P.S

Do you have any reproductions cards or prints for sale?
