Dear Mr. Shebazeff,

My husband says
it will be quite all right to exchange the chestnuts for walnuts. I'm not sure how many chestnuts we have, but the mali says he thinks there's at least a maund, & perhaps more.

Yours truly

C. L. F. Bennett

Dear Mr. Shebazeff,

● My husband is out, but as your letter to him was open, I looked at it to see if I could send a reply, & am herewith sending the carbide.

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Shebaryeff,

Thank you very much indeed for cutting the pieces of glass for me.

My chaprasi told me there was a mistri at the Hall who could cut glass, otherwise I should not have sent the glass to be cut. I had no idea that it would be you who would do the job!

Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Shebayeff,

We shall be so glad if you can come tomorrow either to tea (4.30) or dinner (8.30) whichever suits you better.

My husband is in from camp for a few days. We see very little of him during the Summer as he has so much touring to do.

Yours sincerely
C. L. F. Lewitt

P.S.

If you come to dinner, we shall give you an entirely vegetarian meal.

Dear Mr Shebajeff,

I am so glad you can come to dinner this evening. I forgot to say that you needn't wear dinner clothes, ordinary clothes instead.

It is very kind of you to bring your slides - we'll love to see them. It won't be necessary to bring a lantern of course, as we have one here.

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Shebayeff,

Thank you for your letter & the return of the book.

I do not know how many chestnuts we have, but I shall send a man up to the Hall with the chestnuts, as I think you have accurate scales & measures there - which we haven't here!

Yours sincerely

Dear Mr. Shebaryeff,

I send some copies of "Punch", & also would like to know if you want any chestnuts? We have a great mang here which we shall not be able to use.

I hope Madame Roerich is feeling better.

Dear Mr. Shebayeff,

Very many thanks for the lovely walnuts, which we are very glad to get.

I hope Madame Roerich's health is now better.

With kind regards

Yours sincerely
