Dear Dudley Fosdick:

Many thanks for your letter, which reached me today. It is good to hear from you, and good to have some straight news. I'll be grateful if you will send this (permanent) address to your brother. I've had nothing from Flamma since I left New York--over a year ago.

Thanks for telling me about my book's success with your niece. It's very pleasant to hear such things. I wish I could report that I'm doing a lot of work, and accomplishing much, but I've been feeling pretty low, and on the ragged edge of something or other. I can't seem to force myself to work. Whatever it is, it's a bad state to be in,--and I wish I could snap out of it.

It's distressing to hear of Mme. Roerich's illness--just after hearing she was much better. I wonder if Mrs. Seidel was mistaken, too, about the publishing of a book of Prof. Roerich's newer pictures, in Latvia?

Please remember me to Miss Grant and to your brother. And again thanks for your good letter.

Sincerely yours,

(signed) James Hull
